

MANILA SPEEDZONE - THE FORT

Taguig City
National Capital Region

Site/Facility Profile

Ever wonder what it's like to get behind the wheel of a racecar and feel the adrenaline rush as you gain speed on a racetrack?

The Manila SpeedZone built in 2000 in Cainta and re-located at the Fort Bonifacio Global City will satisfy this need for speed, giving enthusiasts the chance to don a racing suit, a racing helmet, and drive a Go Kart that can zoom in excess of 60mph.

The speed rush, however, is totally exhilarating, giving the driver a real feel of what it is like to be an F1 driver. The senses are further stimulated as you get ready to push the pedal to the metal, and as you get past the checkered flag at the end of the lap. Completing the experience is a professionally designed racetrack, complemented by a computerized lap-counting device and a speed-monitoring and controlling system that are all unique to SpeedZone.

And you don't even need to race against somebody, as the computerized system can track your actual lap times, and the improvements you've made on every hair-pin turn or on every tire-screaming straight-away within the 7,300-sq-meter racetrack.

SpeedZone is the first world-class leisure racing complex in the country boasting of 29 high-speed karts, and a professionally-designed racetrack within a sprawling 10,200-sq-meter complex. The facility has a racing-themed restaurant, a view deck, and several function rooms to cater to corporate events.

SUBIC INTERNATIONAL RACEWAY

Subic Freeport, Olongapo City
Region 3 – Central Luzon

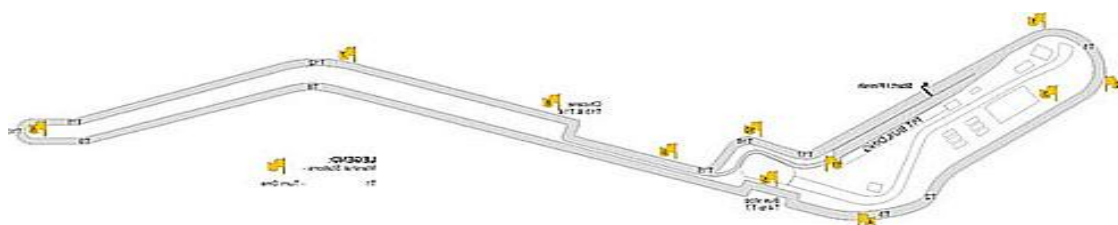

Site/Facility Profile

Any racer's crave for speed is surely satisfied with the 2.9 km track length and 13 m track width of the Subic International Raceway.

Built in 1994 and renovated in 2002, the raceway flaunts a total of eight right turns and nine left turns. It gained FIM approval in 1997 and a grade four FIA license in 1998.

At the raceway, racing enthusiasts converge and test their mettle as they excitingly maneuver through its bitumen surface and angled turns. A short straight will follow and will pass on the opposite side of the big Subic Bay hangar. This straight is about 300 meters long, and leading to a slight bend to the right, followed by the new turn three, which will be a very fast corner that will come before the long straight. This corner requires a very fast turn, and when shifted to the fourth gear, the cars must be traveling around 180kph – formula cars will be faster, of course. This corner will lead to a long 500 meter straight and most reach over 200kph along that straight.

It has hosted the Asian 1600 Touring Car Invitational Cup, the Philippine Japan Invitational Historic Car Races and the Hong Kong Classic Car Races Marlboro Asia Pacific Road Racing Championship, the Asian Festival of Speed (AFOS) featuring the Southeast Asian Touring Car Zone Challenge (SEATCZC) and the Asian Formula 2000.

BUTUAN AND SURIGAO AIRPORTS

Agusan del Norte
Region 13 - CARAGA

Site/Facility Profile

Soar high with a cost, that for many, can be quite exorbitant. For others, it is an adventure beyond compare!

Skydive to where mountain ranges are just within a few kilometers away to the drop-off point, and feel the cool breeze as you slowly descend to a 15 hectare flat terrain within the Butuan or Surigao airports, or any vacant lot within the vicinity of the city. A take-off of your aircraft from the Cebu City may just take a few minutes.

Whether yours is a student jump or an experienced dive, nothing can match the ecstasy of an aircraft ascending and later, yourself descending with puff of air that seems to sanitize your whole being.

The CARAGA Skydiving Group and the Butuan Skydiving Group make soaring the thin air less burdensome for enthusiasts willing to try the adventure.
